Project Management

I have had experience in multiple of my own projects on the internet but also in the real world, these were rather businesses than projects since they grew and were profitable. My role in these projects was constantly running, managing, marketing and developing these businesses. These projects have been in smaller teams of 3-4 people where we constantly learned new knowledge and worked together against a common goal. We managed to create websites from scratch and acquired customers/visitors until they became large communities that were profitable.

These projects helped me develop and improve in many skills such as:

- Creative thinking, critical thinking and problem solving.
- Communication, collaboration, team building and teamwork.
- Entrepreneurial, leadership, management, decision making.
- Time management, multitasking and organizational.
- Business, accounting, marketing, sales, negotiation and persuasion.
